In none of the 5 Cases are the Specific circumstances under which the men caught plague given. The Certificate given by the District Supt of Police only State that he has "found by enquiry that the deceased were on beat duty in plague infected localities & ran imminent risk of catching the infection just previous to their illness and death". This does not establish that the plague was Contracted while on duty and not when off duty. It is as probable that they caught the infection while they were not on beat duty as while they were on such duty so far as stated by the Police Supt the whole city was infected

But the only data available (the report of the Police Supt) is to the latter effect

If the Police Supdt. has satisfied himself by enquiry that these men died of Plague caught in the execution of duty, he should send in a certificate to that effect. The certificates already granted do not go far enough. We want some responsible officer to say as a result of enquiry that the disease was caught in the execution of duty. This does not appear plainly from the record.

Make an enquiry as above—

SIR,

11 July 06 25

With reference to your letter No. Fl.548/S &A 44-05-2 dated 19th July 1906, I have the honour to retransmit for the orders of Government the Extraordinary pension application on behalf of Nagalingapillai son of deceased police constable Maduremuthu Pillai of the Hunsur Taluk together with a copy of letter No. 641 dated 30th June 1906 from the Superintendent of Police Mysore District to the Inspector General of Police from which it will be seen that no elaborate enquiries seem to have made regarding the cause of death.

2. Beyond the statement that the District Superintendent of Police has personally satisfied himself that the case falls under article 373 Mysore Service Regulations, no details of the work that the man was doing immediately before his death is given to establish a case for exceptional treatment.

It is not easy to decide the exact scope of the note under article 373 but a general statement applying to a whole force does not clearly satisfy the conditions of the rule.

Enclosure No.

Sir,

With reference to your No. 3404/237 dated 21.12.05 and 3489/241 dated 28.12.05 forwarding extraordinary pension and gratuity rolls noted in the margin for submission of explanation on the points objected to by the Comptroller

I have the honor to re-submit the applications with the following note:-

2 In the years 1900, 1901 and 1902 Mysore city was highly infected with plague. At such times men who had to be detailed for beat and routine police duties duties had also to attend to the duty of guarding infected and evacuated houses, to visit infected localities and to inform plague authorities of the attacks and deaths within their Jurisdictions, as in the years previous to 1900, there were no special men employed for plague duties only. Since the whole city was infected every one of the city force employed on active executive duties ran as much risk of catching the infection as if they were on special plague duty only. If Police men had avoided such risks by absenting themselves from such duties, they would have been held liable for prosecution under the Police rules and Police duties would have seriously suffered. To their credit it has to be stated that there was no such case of prosecution and every man went out on his duties however dangerous they were.

When the provisions of extraordinary pension or gratuity were extended latterly to the cases of those running imminent risk of infection or danger even in the course of ordinary duties a thorough enquiry had to be held of all plague deaths among Policemen, not only in other infected localities in the District. Many Policemen had died of plague but those cases which did not satisfy the conditions of Sec 373 had to be eliminated and only such applications as were found to be well grounded were sent up for favourable consideration.

The Police records bear out that these men were on beat duties in infected localities. The city and Taluk authorities have reported such cases after their enquiries and I have carefully gone into each case and satisfied myself as to their validity

Since

5 Since plague was raging and plague deaths were of too common occurrence no special notice was taken in the case of P.P.C. deaths only and no elaborate enquiries were held immediately after such deaths. As there was no question granting extraordinary pension or gratuity then, the usual departmental reports were made by the immediate local officers about those plague deaths. These reports were taken as the basis for subsequent enquiries held by me during my frequent visits and only such cases which fell under Sec 373 were recommended. Looking to the large number of Policemen and officers employed on plague duties during infection times and the comparatively few recommendations made for pension or gratuity, it would be a pity if sanction is withheld on the ground of want of formal inquest or of omission of the mention of the circumstances as to how, when and where the infection was actually caught by each individual. In the case of each of these plague deaths, the survivors are living a pitiful life for want of supporters

6 In these circumstances I would strongly urge the early sanction of the pension or gratuity recommended in the case of each. I have attached certificates as to enquiries held by me

me and as to why there was delay in the submission of certain applications
